ARRIVAL OF FIRST TROOPS

Indiana University is proud of her war record. Indiana men and women feel a great satisfaction in knowing that when Indiana University was called upon for men, money, service, sacrifice, or whatever was needed to win the great conflict that she never failed to respond.

PARADE TO UNIVERSITY

WAITING FOR THE BAND

Throughout all her history the record shows that Indiana University has believed in preparedness. Military drill has been a part of the curriculum of this institution for many years and as far back as 1840. The revival of military training, however, began as a war measure in June, 1916; ten months before the United States entered the World War. This military training developed into a Reserve Officer's Training Camp under the command first of Captain Kenneth P. Williams, recently recommended for Major, Captain Campbell King, who was recently appointed Brigadier-General, Captain Edwin J. Nowlen (later

During the summer of 1918 the military at the University was under the supervision of Sergeant Stanley C. Jones.

The main interest of Indiana University's war history during this period, however, was centered in the R. O. T. C. camp which was held at Fort Sheridan, Illinois. The members of this camp were selected from the colleges of the South and Middle West. The purpose of this camp was to fit these men who were sent as the representatives of their colleges with a knowledge of military training and tactics that would enable them to be of great assistance in carrying on the work in military science at the University during the next year. The graduates of this first camp were not given commissions but were given certificates as qualified military instructors.

RAISING THE COLORS

At the end of this first R. O. T. C. Camp, the War Department decided to inaugurate a second camp under the name of the Student's Army Training Corps. This camp was also held at Fort Sheridan and to it Indiana sent sixty students and eight members of the faculty. During this camp intense training and instruction was given to the candidates and they were taught the most advanced principles of modern tactics. At the close of the Student's Army Training Corps Camp, twenty-three Indiana men were commissioned as second lieutenants. These men were assigned to various colleges and camps as instructors.

During this training camp at Fort Sheridan the government made the sweeping change in its plans that affected the colleges more than anything else on the war program of the government. This change followed the change in the nation's legislation reducing the draft age to eighteen years, thereby including most of the college men of the country. The new plan of the government was announced at a meeting of the college presidents held at Fort Sheridan, August 30 and 31. The plan was announced by Lieutenant-Colonel Robert I. Rees, chairman of the War Department's Committee on Education and Special Training.

According to this plan the government was to practically take over for military purposes the organization and equipment of every college able to muster a sufficient number of students for military drill. This surrender on the part of the colleges to the government control was to be voluntary, and the relation between the government and the college was to be a matter of contract. A duty rested upon the colleges to provide suitable barracks and subsistence for the members of the Student's Army Training Corps, in addition to academic instruction, the colleges to be reimbursed as agreed upon in the contract with the government.

Indiana University was one of the first to make this contract, and began early to make plans for the housing and feeding of the great number of soldiers who were to be trained here.

With these developments, military activity became the most marked phase of University life at the beginning of the present college year. Indiana University was selected as one of the colleges which was to have a unit of the Student's Army Training Corps, and the young men of this and adjoining States began to make preparations to be inducted into the army here, preparatory to being sent to some other training camp after they had been instructed along special lines at this camp.

According to the plan of the government the men for the S. A. T. C. were recruited by voluntary induction of such physically-fit men of draft age (members of Class I who registered prior to September 12, 1918, excepted) as could meet the regular college entrance requirements.

The men of the S. A. T. C. at Indiana University, as at other universities, were furnished barracks and subsistence by the government. The plan was to have the men receive military training under regular officers of the United States Army and at the same time take academic work. The plan was also to have the work of each soldier under constant supervision in order that he might be rated and sent to the training camp for which he seemed qualified.

The first section of the Student's Army Training Corps to be represented on the campus was the Vocational Section. These men composed what was called the radio detachment, and were at first under the command of Captain Samuel A. Mulhauser. The first group of radio men arrived September 1 and the second group on September 15. These men were quartered at first in Assembly Hall and were partly equipped and were mastering the rudiments of military instruction when the men arrived who were to be inducted into the Collegiate Section.

The Collegiate Section was composed of over nine hundred men. Captain Dalton, who had acted as Commandant during the R. O. T. C. period, remained at the University in charge of the new units. Two first lieutenants and ten second lieutenants were detailed by the government to be his assistants. Other commissioned officers were added to the staff later and the total number of instructors, including the commissioned officer at the School of Medicine at Indianapolis, was seventeen.

RADIO MEN AT ALPHA HALL

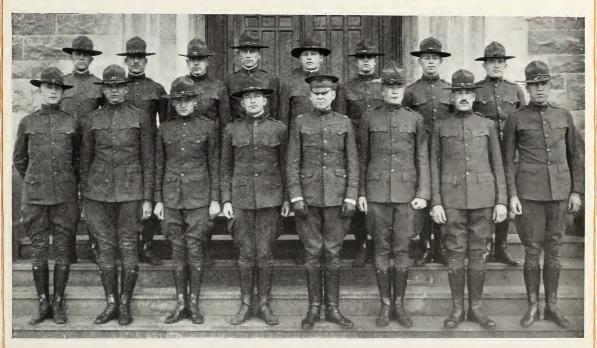

The first task that confronted this staff of officers was the induction of the student candidates for the Corps.

The first step taken by the student candidate was the presentation of his academic qualifications and credentials to the University authorities and his enrolment in the college course approved by the War Department.

The candidate then filed his application for admission to the Corps. After his application was filed, he was required to undergo a physical examination that was thorough in every detail.

In case the candidate passed the physical examination successfully, it was necessary for him to make arrangements with the draft board in his home town to transfer him to the jurisdiction of the Monroe County Local Board, from whom he eventually received his induction papers. These papers were filed with the Commandant at the University.

The physical examinations for the Student's Army Training Corps were started September 26, and all the preliminary steps had been completed by October 1. At this time the final ceremony of induction was held on Jordan Field. Both the collegiate section and the Vocational Section were included in this ceremony.

During this ceremony the members of the Corps were commanded and formed into temporary organizations by the officers of the staff and by students who had attended the camps at Fort Sheridan but had not been commissioned. The men were all called to attention and were caused to stand at attention while Captain Dalton read to them the message from General March, Chief of Staff of the Army, and administered the oath of loyalty. President William Lowe Bryan addressed the newly inducted soldiers and explained to them their duty to put their country's cause first until the war should be won.

The mammoth service flag of the University was planted on Jordan Field and was waving over the heads of the soldiers. President Bryan pointed with pride to the service flag as symbolizing the active part the University had already played in the war.

The radio detachment was fully equipped by this time and was beginning to be characterized by the precision and discipline that belongs to well-drilled companies.

In the Collegiate Section companies were formed at once, students who had already had military experience were appointed as non-commissioned officers, quarters were assigned and uniforms and equipment were ordered for the entire outfit.

Owing to the large demand for equipment the men did not receive their uniforms at once. According to the plan each man was to receive an overcoat, pair of shoes, and two uniforms, one being of heavy woolen material for winter use. A supply of rifles (old Springfields and other makes which had been manufactured in this country for the Russian Government) arrived early in November and were issued to the men.

The course of instruction for the men in the S. A. T. C., as approved by the War Department, consisted of fourteen credit hours of academic work each week and eleven hours of the military. The schedule following will indicate something of the nature of the routine of the men:

Reveille 6:00

Drill

Mess
Class work and freedom1:00-5:00
Retreat 5:15

Inspection of the men and of their barracks was held at 8:00 on Saturday. After inspection the men were allowed liberty for the rest of the day. The men were also allowed liberty on Sunday with the exception of the men who were appointed for fatigue duty.

The academic work during the first term was greatly handicapped by the outbreaks of influenza, which made it necessary that the class work should be discontinued from October 10 to November 4. The men were not allowed to go home during this time, however, but remained in camp here. They were given extra drill, plenty of supervised athletics, and an hour of calisthenics each day. By means of this healthy, out-door life which the men lived during the influenza epidemic the members of the S. A. T. C. were kept in exceedingly good health. Considering the number of men in the units, a very small number was attacked by the disease.

WHERE THE FLU PATIENTS WERE CARED FOR

A hospital was established in Assembly Hall and skilled medical attention was given to the men when they became ill. The women of Bloomington performed faithful service at the University Hospital in Assembly Hall, taking great interest in rendering any service which was within their power to the sick men at that place. The women who comprised the Motor Corps of Bloomington also rendered faithful and efficient service to the military forces at Indiana University.

By the time school re-opened on November 4 practically all of the men had been outfitted and were rapidly developing into well-drilled and well-diciplined soldiers. They were divided into four companies, A, B, C, and D. The naval unit was at first part of Company D, but was later formed into a separate group under Lieutenant Richard H. Spencer.

For the purpose of convenience, the men in one barracks were, in most cases, assigned to the same company for drill.

The fraternities at Indiana University gladly offered their houses to the government to be used as barracks.

The fraternity houses were remodeled and refitted in order to measure up to government specifications. All furniture, draperies, pictures and ornamentation of all kinds was removed from the fraternity houses. The floors of the houses were also left bare and they were transformed into regulation army barracks.

SECTION OF THE HOSPITAL

The men were all issued cots and warm army blankets and mattresses. The number of men assigned to a particular barracks was determined, of course, by the size of the barracks and the amount of floor space. In so far as was possible the members of the same fraternity were quartered in the same barracks.

The fraternities were reimbursed by the government for the use of the houses, for their depreciation, and for the subsistence of the men quartered in them.

The number of men assigned to the barracks changed from time to time; but at the beginning of the training the numbers were approximately as follows: The Delta Tau House (Barracks No. 1) accommodated 52 soldiers; Phi Psi House (Barracks No. 2) had 111 men; S. A. E. House (Barracks No. 3) had 50 men; Beta House (Barracks No. 4), 92; Phi Gam House (Barracks No. 5), 84; Kappa Sigma House (Barracks No 6), 58; Masonic House (Barracks No. 7), 37; Kappa Alpha Psi House (Barracks No. 8), 19; Phi Beta Pi (Barracks No. 9), 46; Sigma Nu House (Barracks No. 10), 65; Delta Upsilon House (Barracks No. 11), 61; Alpha Tau Omega House (Barracks No. 12), 52; Dalethian House (Barracks No. 13), 48; Sigma Chi House (Barracks No. 14), 98; Lambda Chi House (Barracks No. 15), 55; Phi Delta Theta House (Barracks No. 16), 45.

A section of the men in Company D who were inducted late were quartered on the basket-ball floor of the Men's Gymnasium. This was known as Barracks No. 17. In like manner Alpha Hall, which had formerly been used as a girl's dormitory, was converted into an army barracks and the radio men were quartered there.

A top sergeant, mess sergeant and various other non-commissioned officers were appointed in the barracks. These men were in absolute charge of the barracks during the absence of the commissioned officers.

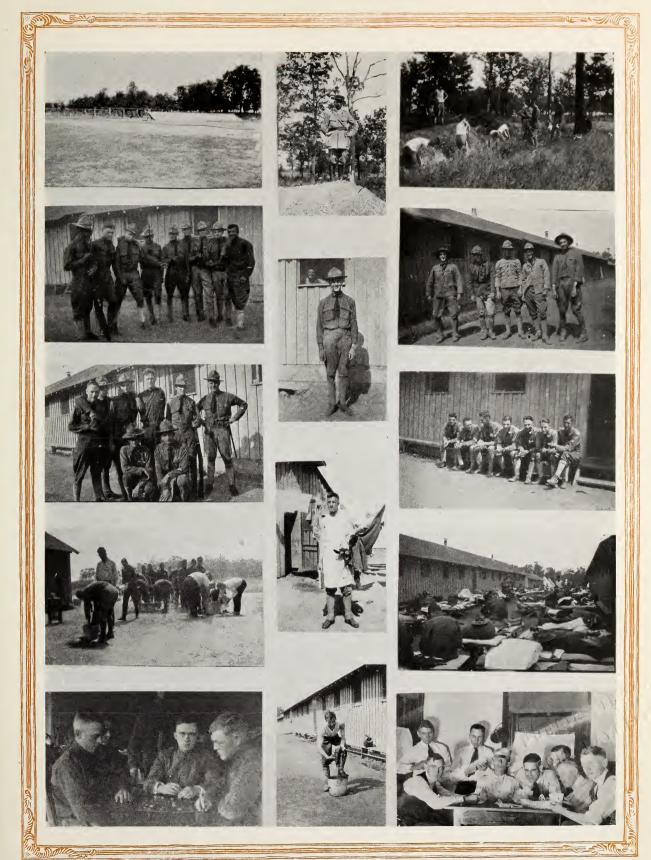

ALPHA HALL IMITATES A BEE-HIVE

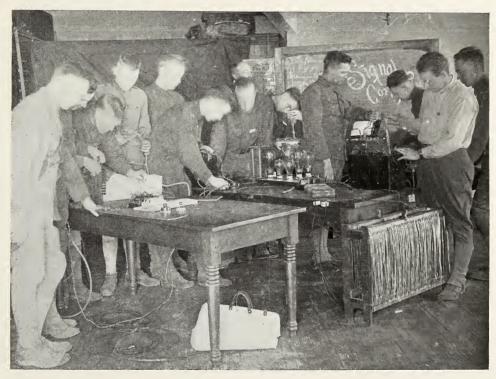

They were also in subordinate command of the men in their barracks during the drill hours.

Many duties arose for the men in the barracks in addition to the regulation drill. One of the most characteristic duties of army life is probably that of the kitchen police—or K. P. as he is known in the army. In each house a new detail of several men was assigned to the duty each day. Membership on this detail would come regularly by rotation, but in some cases it was gained as a punishment for some breach of the military rules.

Another one of the characteristic duties around the barracks was that of the charge of quarters. The C. Q. was in charge, for one day, of the barracks. In the army he is responsible for seeing that the men go to bed at the regulation hour, and is also responsible for seeing that they rise at the proper sound of the bugle. It is also his duty to see that the bunks are in proper order for inspection and that every room is well cleaned and ship-shape.

Military life at Indiana University was not all hard work, however. Various kinds of games, contests, and races were invented and tried by the men in charge of supervised recreation. In each house it chanced that sufficient musicians were quartered to organize a sort of amateur orchestra, and this bunch of melody-artists supplied their bunk-mates with a great number of popular songs and the songs that are loved by military men the world over.

RADIO MEN AT WORK

YEA! RADIO

Indiana University was one of the three colleges in the State where a naval unit was established. On September 27 a naval officer visited the University and selected fifty men, whose induction into the Naval Reserve took place shortly after October 1. These men were to have been given intensive training here, after which they were to have been sent to a deck officer's school.

In addition to these fifty S. A. T. C. naval men there were about thirty men who had been former students in the University detailed here from the Great Lakes Naval Training Station, where they had just completed three months intensive training. Some of these men were candidates for deck officers, and others were candidates for the Paymaster's School at Princeton University. These men were candidates for commissions as Ensigns in the United States Naval Reserve Force.

The naval men were quartered in the Men's Gymnasium in what was known as Barracks No. 18.

The naval men were under the general command of Commandant Captain Arthur T. Dalton, and were under the special command of First Lieutenant Richard H. Spencer, Lieutenant Spray, and later Lieutenant Whetsell.

As the men became more proficient in their military work they were classified according to experience and efficiency. From time to time calls came in from various officer's training camps, and Indiana University contributed her full share to the needs of these camps by sending to them the men in the S. A. T. C. units here who were best prepared and who possessed the officer-like qualities necessary for a successful army officer. A number of men were sent to an infantry officer's training school at Camp Gordon, Georgia. Others were sent to a coast artillery officer's training school at Fortress Monroe, Virginia.

These men were, for the most part, undergoing instruction in these various training schools when the armistice was signed and military activities began to lessen in the United States.

When the armistice was signed on November 11, 1918, the entire Student's Army Training Corps was turned out for parade at four o'clock in the morning, after the whole city had been awakened by the continuous ringing of bells and the blowing of factory whistles.

A more formal celebration was held the next day at which the soldiers of the S. A. T. C. again paraded.

The work of the men in the S. A. T. C. did not slack, however, with the signing of the armistice, but the military work was continued with the same energy and care that had characterized it during the earlier part of the year.

Orders came from the War Department, however, that the S. A. T. C. units were to be disbanded by December 21, 1918. The military authorities set out at once to get ready to execute this order and worked with such efficiency that they were able to discharge every man on the required date.

RADIO MEN AT WORK IN KEY ROOM

Before the men were discharged all the equipment that had been issued to them was checked in, they were paid up to the day of mustering out, and received the necessary insurance papers.

After all these details had been attended to the men were discharged during the day of December 21. Both the men in the Radio Detachment and the men in the Collegiate Section received their discharges at this time.

Most of the men who were members of the Student's Army Train-Corps returned to school the second semester as civilian students.

Indiana University, during the Students Army Training Corps period, practically suspended all social activities and devoted its entire attention to preparing the young men in training here for their duties as officers.

The only social functions which took place at that time were the company dances and various military functions.

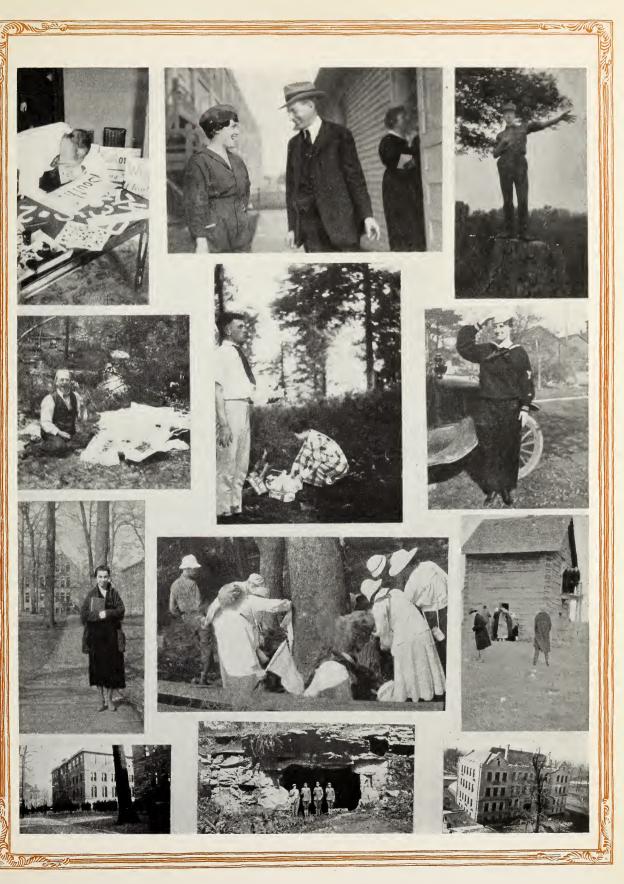

The people of Bloomington were very courteous and kind to the S. A. T. C. men, and through the Community Welfare Board made life much more pleasant for the men in camp here.

FIELD WORK

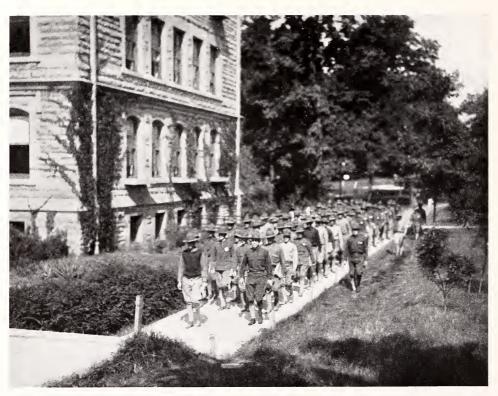

THE SOLDIER'S FRIENDS

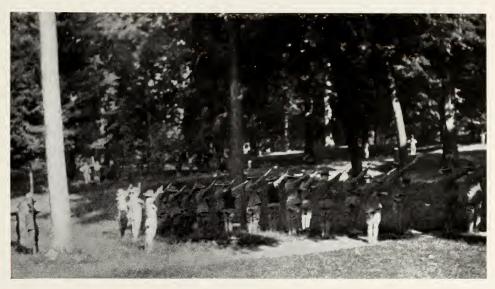

The Young Men's Christian Association also performed a very unselfish work in helping to make the lives of the men a little brighter.

The Y. M. C. A. furnished leaders who held services in each barracks on Sunday morning, and from which the men derived much pleasure and benefit.

The Red Triangle men also staged free movies for the soldiers and were always ready to do anything in their power to keep the men smiling. One of the conveniences furnished the men by the "Y" was a canteen on the lower floor of the Student Building, at which the men might purchase supplies and delicacies.

COMING HOME FROM CLASS

SEMAPHORE DRILL

Later the officials of the S. A. T. C. established a Post Exchange in the west half of the building occupied by the Indiana Daily Student. Here the men bought coupon books on credit, for which the money was deducted from their pay. This government credit system enabled many men to buy many necessities and comforts which otherwise they would have had to do without.

The curriculum of the University was, of course, greatly changed to meet the needs of the officer training school. Special courses in mathematics were placed on the schedule for the men who were to go to artillery school. Special courses in map-making and topography were also given. Every department in the University modified its instruction so as to offer something immediately applicable to the needs of the S. A. T. C. men.

OFFICER'S TRAINING SCHOOL CANDIDATES

Men were leaving the University practically every week for some advanced officer training camp at the time of the signing of the armistice. Had the war continued possibly not a man beyond the standing of a freshman would have been left in the University at the end of the year.

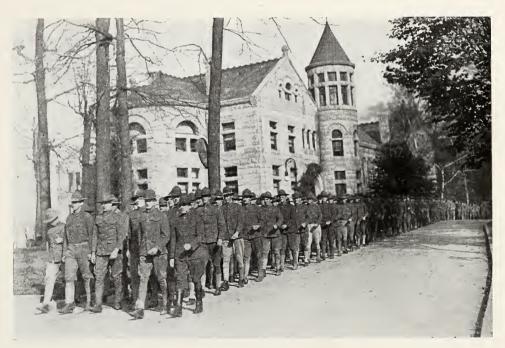

After the signing of the armistice and the mustering out of the S. A. T. C. it was necessary for University conditions to swing around again to normal.

The fraternity houses, which had been used as barracks, were practically all remodeled and reoccupied by the fraternities. The soldiers and sailors were moved out of the gymnasium and the "big house on the hill" again became the home of wrestlers, football players, basketball men, and the center of all athletics.

Athletics had suffered a severe slump during the war period, as it was impossible for the men to find sufficient time to practice for intercollegiate contests. The S. A. T. C. football team, however, made a very good record in competition against other college and army elevens.

Not only along athletic lines, however, but in every other way the University is swinging back to its former conditions and curriculum.

Military training during the present semester has gone back to the R. O. T. C. status. The training is compulsory for freshmen and sophomores. The R. O. T. C. Battalion has been given some splendid training in drill, tactics, and on the rifle range.

Another One Gone

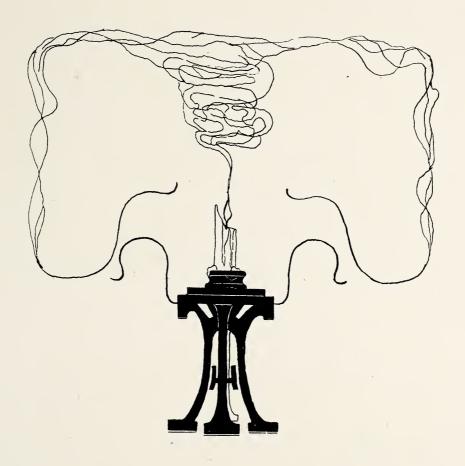

Lieut. Kenyon Stevenson, who was elected Editor of the 1918 Arbutus but was called to military service, has made a distinguished record. He is now engaged in writing a history of his Division, having first made a signal success in writing the history of his regiment during its service in France.

LIEUT. KENYON STEVENSON

One of "Steve's" Guns

Elasses

Rudyard Kipling knew the great men of our time, and with the poet's insight could tell the true from the false, the dross from pure gold. During the Great War the names of many leaders and would-be leaders went round the world, yet when Theodore Roosevelt died, Kipling wrote:

"Concerning brave captains
Our age hath made known
For all men to honour,
One standeth alone,
Of whom, O'er both oceans,
Both peoples may say:
'Our realm is diminished
With Great-Heart away.'"

Phi Delta Phi

Phi Delta Phi, the legal pioneer fraternity, was founded at the Law School of the University of Michigan in 1869, and for over three decades enjoyed the distinction of being the only fraternity in the legal world.

At present forty-six active chapters are located at the leading American law schools, and strong Alumni organizations now exist in seventeen of our largest cities.

Foster Chapter was installed at Indiana University Law School in 1900. In keeping with the national character of the fraternity, membership in the chapter is based primarily upon scholarship. The fraternity enjoys comfortable rooms in Maxwell Hall.

Gamma Eta Gamma

Gamma Eta Gamma was founded at the University of Maine by Judge Gardner of the Boston Bar, who was then Dean of the Law School at the University of Maine. The fraternity strives to uplift the profession and to maintain high ideals among the students of law.

Since the organization of Gamma Eta Gamma it has grown rapidly among those schools which require the accredited two years pre-law work and three years of law work for the Bachelor of Law degree. Scholarship and prominence in school activities are considered in eligibility for membership.

The local chapter of the organization was organized in 1911.

Athletics

DIRECTOR EWALD O. STIEHM

A Period of Dangerous Tension

The athletics of the year 1918-19 may perhaps be best characterized as a year of gloomy uncertainty. This was not alone applicable to athletics at Indiana, but in general to every form of sport in every institution in the United States. The strict regulations of the S. A. T. C., the shifting of schedules, the cancellation of games upon a moment's notice, and the shipping of star athletes to training camps on the eve of important games, as well as the general tendency to neglect sports for the greater game of licking the Kaiser, made the year of 1918-19 a period of dangerous tension which it is a credit to have passed through and survived rather than in the light of any star players developed or wonderful team-work.

Had not the football authorities made the wise move of allowing freshmen to participate in intercollegiate games, it is doubtful whether or not any college in the country could have mustered a team deserving the name. It saved the sport at Indiana University. On the other hand, the S. A. T. C. rulings forced Director Stiehm to cancel contests with Detroit, Wisconsin, Minnesota and Iowa, while the "flu" ban was responsible for the Wabash game being called off, and when the Conference schedule came to be recasted, Indiana was left out in the cold. However, by the end of the season a team was developed that soundly trimmed De Pauw, who had defeated our ancient rival, Purdue, earlier in the season.

The basket-ball team got a poor start, due to several unpreventable causes, but found their stride at the last of the season, and finished well up in the Conference standing. Prospects for good base ball and track teams are exceedingly bright, and now that peace is come, the aggressive athletic policy of "Jumbo" Stiehm and his assistants is sure to bring honor, fame and victory to Indiana University.

Review of the Season

The 1919 football season started with only four regulars left over from the star team of 1917—Hess, Julius, Faust and Pierce; but a goodly number of men who formed the frosh squad of the preceding year showed up in the harness, and fifty-five freshmen answered the first call issued by Coach Stiehm for yearlings. Director Stiehm worked hard to get his men into condition, but with so many outside influences, it was hard for the men to take the interest so usually manifested in the sport. The Varsity lined up against the Freshmen on September 28th, and had little difficulty in defeating the first-year men by a 16 to 6 score. On October the third, the control of football passed into the hands of the War Department, which immediately passed regulations limiting the time to be devoted to practice, the time to be spent upon trips, and the number of trips to be taken by the team. These regulations were made to apply to every football team in the country, and at once apprehension was felt among football authorities that immediate steps must be taken to revise schedules in conformance with these regulations.

However, Director Stiehm went ahead with his plans, and secured a game with Center College of Danville, Kentucky, to be played at Bloomington, October 8th. But, at the last minute, Center College notified Director Stiehm that they would be unable to make connections that would enable them to conform with the S. A. T. C. rules, and reach Bloomington in time for the game. Coach Stiehm at once got in touch with "Andy" Gill, former Crimson star, who is mentor of the Kentucky State eleven, and arrangements were made whereby Kentucky State should play on October 8th, in place of Center College.

KENTUCKY STATE UNIVERSITY 24, INDIANA 7

When the two teams lined up on the field, the Crimson found themselves facing a team of veterans, nine of whom had played at least two years of inter-collegiate football, and the Wildcats from south of the Ohio lived up to their name, taking the offensive from the first kick-off, and running up three touchdowns and a drop-kick, while Indiana scored on a long forward pass from Kyle to Dean.

About this time the influenza situation became serious, and the contest with Wabash was called off, and the sport suffered seriously by cancellations all over the country. The Conference schedule committee met, and when the results were published it was found that Indiana was left out in the cold, her games with Wisconsin, Minnesota, and Iowa all being cancelled.

Coach Stiehm kept the squad hard at work, and arranged games with Camp Taylor and Fort Benjamin Harrison, while the game with De Pauw stood as in the original draft of the schedule.

CAMP TAYLOR 7, INDIANA 3

After practicing a month without an intercollegiate contest, Indiana journeyed to Indianapolis to meet the Camp Taylor eleven, which was composed entirely of men who had started on college teams throughout the country. This combination had gone through their previous games without a score being allowed the opposition, and the Crimson realized that it was facing a tough proposition. The Camp Taylor eleven managed to score a touchdown in the first half, but in the second half Indiana had everything her way, Faust scoring a drop kick, and would have won the game if they had had five more minutes of play, the ball being in Indiana's possession on Camp Taylor's two-yard line when the final whistle blew.

Fort Harrison o, Indiana 41

Coach Stiehm was called east to attend a school for Athletic Instructors of the S. A. T. C. and Assistant Coach Evans took the reins, and with the same combination that played Camp Taylor ran riot over the eleven that represented Fort Benjamin Harrison on Jordan Field a week later. Kilpatrick and Maynard were the most brilliant stars, while the rest showed that they had the stuff of which gridiron stars are made. Preparations were at once started for the game with De Pauw, who had an unusually strong team, having defeated Purdue earlier in the season, and walked over St. Louis and Wabash by overwhelming scores.

De Pauw o, Indiana 13

A following composed of every De Pauw student came down the Monon with the Tiger eleven. They were confident of reversing the history of nineteen years of heart-rending defeats at the hands of the Crimson. But they were doomed to disappointment, for the Indiana eleven was master of the situation at all times, and touchdowns by Habbe and Kilpatrick sufficed to win. The Tigers were sent back up the Monon down-hearted, sadly singed and short of their tusks.

In spite of the obstacles, the spirit evinced by the Crimson team in every contest, the spirit that has prevailed in every branch of sport at Indiana since Director Stiehm came to manage affairs, and the final result, were enough to classify the 1918 football season a success, for the total scores read—Indiana 64, Opponents 31. If the 1919 team has the same fighting spirit, now that the obstacles caused by the war are removed, the record will doubtlessly be a greater success.

Boggs

Boggs came out of his hop this year and did some good work. His defensive work on the line was a tower of strength to the eleven.

Dalzell

Dalzell played his usual consistent game this year. "Dal" is a mighty heady player and his work in the line also wrought much damage to the opposing elevens.

Maynard

Maynard was plunging fullback of the team. Crimson fans felt sure of a long gain when they saw Maynard grab the ball, duck his head, and start to hit the line. He never failed to get through.

Kilpatrick

"Killy" was the sensation of the year. He was one of the best halfbacks in the conference. He was the fastest player on the team, a good dodger, and a good tackler. Kilpatrick has three more years on the Varsity and should win Conference recognition.

Faust

"Cracker" played a mighty heady game at quarterback last fall. He was a member of the university and he filled the big center's shoes in last year's Varsity and won his "I" both years. He was always on the job when it came to returning punts and dis-played good ability as a field general while di-recting the team from the quarterback position.

Lohrei

Kercheval

Kercheval lived up to his high school reputation and played a mighty good game at end, being able many times to gain ground by getting on the connecting end of a forward pass.

Julius

Captain

"Tubby" piloted the 191, cam through the grid-ron season. He played his third year at guard. Julius prevented many a score by his snappy defensive work.

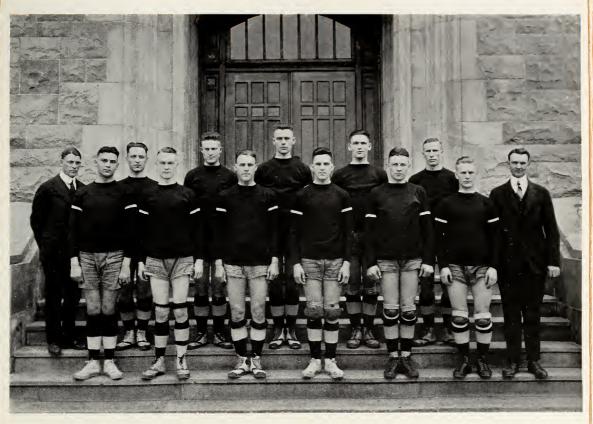

COACH DANA M. EVANS

Coach Evans, the mentor of the Crimson five, easily outranks all other basket-ball coaches in the State. His thorough knowledge of the game, his years of experience, his knack of handling men, and keeping up the spirit of the team in spite of continued defeat, as well as his ability to formulate a defensive for the opponent's attack, stamp him as a basket-ball coach of the first water, and the remarkable comeback of the Indiana five in the last part of the season is in no small measure due to his efforts.

Review of the 1919 Basketball Season

Indiana's basketball squad got away with a poor start, and it was not until mid-season that it struck its stride. The influenza and the late starting of practice were unavoidable handicaps that did not affect other teams, but the finish of the season showed Indiana standing sixth in the Conference, ahead of Purdue, Iowa, Ohio State, and Wisconsin. The Crimson team had the distinction of holding the Minnesota five, who went through their schedule with a clean slate, to the closest margin, in a game played in the New Gymnasium, February 22, the score being 20 to 14, Indiana leading at the end of the first half.

One peculiarity of the Crimson five, was that it put up a much better brand of basket-ball on visiting floors than in the New Gymnasium. The game with De Pauw at Greencastle, March 6th, was one of the best exhibitions of the Crimson fighting spirit that has ever exhibited itself. De Pauw's unusually strong combination started a rally in the last five minutes of play, but wonderful defensive play on the part of the Indiana guards held the score down, and the gun went off with Indiana the victor by one point, seventeen to sixteen.

Indiana should have a wonder five next year if the men who played on the freshman team of 1919 return to school. Kyle, the former Gary wizard, as well as Maynard and Donovan, would be strong contenders for positions on any basket-ball team in the country.

Lawrence Busby, who sometimes admits that he resides in Lapel, Indiana, played three years of High School basket-ball on his home town team. However, inexperience with the collegiate style of playing kept him from winning a letter this year. However, in the few games in which he was used, he showed flashes of stellar form. Byard "Hink" Smith, although playing his first year on the Varsity, is a senior in the University. However, he played two years with Earlham at forward. He held down this position on the 1919 Varsity, and his scrappy floor work was an important factor in the showing of the team. He played three years with Decatur High School.

Ardith Phillip is a native of Amo, Indiana, (Hendricks County), and was the leader of the 1010 squad. THE WRESTLING SQUAD

Review of the 1919 Wrestling Season

Wrestling has always been one of the most popular brands of sport at Indiana University, and positions on the squad are hotly contested. The personality and knowledge of Coach Rathbun also has a great influence in making the mat game popular at Indiana. Coach Rathbun knows the game from A to Z, and is able to teach the Crimson grapplers all the tricks of the sport. Dalzell, captain of last year's squad, assisted in the coaching of the team this year.

The first meet of the Crimson wrestling team was on the night of February first, with the strong Y. M. C. A. team for opponents. The Crimson won all but one bout, and the final score was 16 to 3. Mumby and Yeager were the stars of the meet, the former showing superior skill.

THE GRAPPLING FIVE

On February sixth, the Crimson squad journeyed down the Monon to West Baden, where they put on an exhibition meet with Detachment Number One of the Hospital Corps who were caring for the wounded soldiers recuperating there. The meet took place in the famous rotunda of the West Baden Hotel, and the Indiana University team had little difficulty in defeating the soldier aggregation, by three falls to one. Mumby and Yeager were again the stars.

Director Stiehm sent Mumby to the Conference meet, but it was his luck to draw for his opponent in the first round the man who proved to be the champion of the 158 pound class. Mumby wrestled under the handicap of a sprained wrist, and at that was eliminated on a close decision.

Swimming

Owing to the great advantages of the large swimming pool in the New Gymnasium, and the expert advice of Coach Rathbun, the instructor in swimming, swimming is perhaps the most universal form of exercise at Indiana University.

A fraternity has been organized by Mr. Rathbun, the qualifications for the membership of which are the fulfillment of certain required tests of speed, endurance and fancy swimming, as well as excellence in diving and plunging. No team was sent to the Conference meet at Evanston, Ill., this year, but the next year is sure to find Indiana well at the front.

Above is a picture of the Varsity locker room in the New Gymnasium. There are over two hundred lockers in this one room, and rooms opening into it contain showers, a steam bath, and rub-down apparatus. Every convenience and appliance known to trainers is here for the use of the men who represent Indiana University on the football gridiron, the basket-ball floor, the wrestling mat, the baseball diamond and in track and field athletics.

Indiana University's gymnasium is the most modern and up-to-date in the State, and would compare favorably with any institution of its size in the country. Handball courts, a 90 by 60 swimming pool, plenty of shower baths and a gymnasium floor equipped with new equipment are here for the use of the students of Indiana University, and the popularity of the gymnasium speaks well for the wisdom of the Trustees and State Legislature who enabled such a building to be built.

PROSPECTS FOR THE 1919 SEASON

From the day when the first call for men for a baseball squad was issued, March 4th, it was evident that Indiana would have a baseball team that would be a winner. The new coach, Harry Scholler, a former Crimson star and veteran minor leaguer, arrived to take charge of affairs on April 1st, and the very next day "Kay" Kunkel shut out the Indianapolis Indians, and on the day following the Crimson rallied in the eighth and took another game from the Indians—3 to 2—tieing the series. Hanover, State Normal, Rose Poly and Wabash were handed beatings in quick succession; but the Crimson infield wobbled at South Bend in the third inning, and gave Notre Dame a lead that was just one too much for a rally in the ninth to overcome. Parks, of Michigan, held the Crimson to one lone hit, a single by Driscoll in the ninth, while his team-mates had little difficulty in finding Kunkel, but a shift in the line-up so strengthened the team to enable the Crimson to triumph over the Michigan Aggies and Michigan State Normal on the following days.

Returning home from their northern trip, Indiana again faced the Michigan Aggies, and the supreme pitching sufficed to make the sole marker of the game count for a victory for the Crimson. On the following day Wisconsin proved helpless before Kunkel's slants, while Indiana hit Miller to all parts of the field. The Badgers stayed over Sunday for a return game, and the Indiana nine piled up what looked to be a comfortable lead in the first few innings, but the Badgers rallied in the ninth, coming out on the long end of a 4-to-3 score. Indiana fans are confident that with a fair share of the "breaks" the Crimson nine will finish the season with a credible record.

On paper the Crimson team looks almost invincible, but there is a high "Probable Error" in baseball, and predictions are hard to make. Captain Kunkel, Wooten, and Jeffries are a fine pitching staff, while the infield, composed of Sutheimer at first, Dean at the keystone sack, Dennis at short, and Butorff at the hot corner, compares favorably with any Conference combination. Driscoll, the leading hitter and base-runner of the nine, with Teeters and Faust, takes care of the outfield.

KENNETH M. KUNKEL Captain

"Kay" was elected captain of the Crimson nine for 1919. Kunkel performs in the box and his pitching ability has been invaluable to the team. Under his leadership the team is starting on what promises to be a successful season. "Kay" lives at Kokomo, Indiana.

ALVIN SUTHEIMER
"Suttie" has been playing a good game this year at the initial sack. His fast work has cut off many a runner from getting a good start on the trip to the home plate. He is playing his second year on the varsity. "Suttie" comes from Evansville, Indiana.

WILLARD RAUSCHENBACH
"Red" was captain of the 1918 team. He was used first at short this year, and is working behind the bat at the present time. "Red" is always able to hold up the Crimson pitchers when he is working at the backstop position. He is also a mighty handy man with the bat. He lives at Stilwell, Indiana.

HOBART DENNIS
"Hobe" started the season at backstop, but was later switched to short, where his work has been mighty good. "Hobe" also manages to slip in for a hit or two once in a while. He lives at Winamac.

Russell Julius

"Tubby" is playing his second year on the Varsity. He has been cavorting in the field this year. "Tubby" is not only a good player on the offensive but invariably succeeds in getting the players on the opposing team rattled by the line of kidding he hands out. His home is in Bloomington.

Jack Driscoll

one of the field positions, and his throw to the home plate picks off many a runner. He is hails from Jeffersonville.

Everett Dean

"Jack" is one of the Dean is one of the stars heavy hitters of the of last year's freshman team. He holds down squad. His work at second base is of the big league variety, and he helps work out many a double play. He is also playing his second year a mighty handy man with on the Varsity. "Jack" the stick. Dean lives at the stick. Dean lives at Salem, Indiana.

FRANK FAUST

"Cracker" holds down another of the field positions, and the Crimson fans always feel safe when they see a fly go-ing out his way. "Fizz-ler" is playing his second year on the Varsity, and his playing and hitting this season have been of an exceptional caliber. Faust hails from Covington, Indiana.

URBAN JEFFRIES

"Jeff" has been pitching some mighty good ball this season. The Crimson twirler is playing his second year on the Varsity and is going better this year than ever be-fore. "Jeff also makes a good attempt to win his own game by clever wielding of the stick. He lives at Rockville, Indiana.

Melvin Wooten

Wooten is a Gary boy. He has been used in the pitcher's box several times this season and never fails to give a good account of himself. He showed up especially well during the games with the Indianapolis Indians.

GORDON BUTTORFF

hot ones around third base. He covers the ground well, has a good peg to first and shows up well on the batting average.

EWING CAMPBELL

Buttorff picks off some Campbell is another of the Crimson twirlers. He was a member of last year's freshman team. He lives at North Vernon, Indiana.

DONALD TETER

Teter won everlasting fame when he made his sensational one-handed catch in the Wisconsin game. He is also doing some pretty clever work with the big stick. He is playing his first year on the Varsity. He lives at Sheridan, Indiana.

Prospects for the 1919 Track Season

Track is another favorite sport of Indiana University. Coach Evans handles this branch, and is thoroughly versed in all branches both track and field events.

When the first call was issued the outlook was far from brilliant, but the return of men who had been in service boosted the prospects, until by the middle of April the cinder fans were assured that Indiana would be capably represented in this branch of sport.

Bohn Purcell Keeling Williams

Captain Briggs is the Crimson's best bet in the hundred and twotwenty yard dashes; Loomis looms up large in the four-forty, and Keeling can be counted on to do big things in both dashes and the broad jump. Mogge is always dependable in the distance runs, as is Williams in the high jump and hurdles. Phillips excells in both shot-put and discus. So it can be readily seen that Coach Evans has a well balanced team.

Coach Evans is also working hard with his freshmen, and some of them, notably Conrad and Johnson, are showing themselves to be of high caliber.

The fast Masonic quintet, with a record of eleven victories and only one defeat, gained the honors in competitive basketball, and incidentally the silver basketball trophy of the series.

Strong opposition was furnished by the Sigma Nu, A. T. O., and the Phi Delt quintets. The Kappa Sigs stood third in the percentage column. The deciding contest was won by the new champs from the A. T. O.'s by a 6-to-3 count. The Sigma Nu five loomed up as a powerful contender for the trophy, and ministered to the Masons a 2 to 1 defeat in a game featured by tight guarding.

The contests, which were staged at the New Gymnasium on Tuesdays and Saturdays, were well attended. Close guarding featured the whole series. The winners played clean, consistent ball. They had no individual stars, but played as a team.

Robert W. Long Hospital Training School For Nurses

The Training School for Nurses at Indianapolis is a part of Indiana University School of Medicine. The didactic courses are given by members of the faculty of the School of Medicine and of the College of Liberal Arts, and the practical training is obtained in the Robert Long Hospital. All applicants for admission must comply with the entrance requirements of Indiana University, and also special requirements with reference to health and physical development.

This school, therefore, aims to meet the maximum requirements of any of the States, so that its graduates may be eligible to practice as registered nurses in any part of the country and thus be unrestricted in the choice of their work.

Dr. Edna G. Henry Director of Social Service Department.

The Social Service Department, although it belongs to the College of Liberal Arts, and is primarily a teaching department, has six activities.

Its daily routine work consists in the social care of all free and part pay patients of the Robert W. Long Hospital, and such patients as are referred to it in the Indianapolis City Dispensary.

In the Robert W. Long Hospital it undertakes to furnish such social information and following as may complete the cure and care of the patient. In the Dispensary it gives only miscellaneous service and such work as may be done in the process of teaching students.

The department also provides: (1) class and volunteer experience for the students in the School of Medicine; (2) teaching for junior students of Training School for Nurses, and six weeks of practice work for senior nurses; (3) a two-year course in social service for undergraduate students of the University; (4) opportunity for practical training in social service for graduate students who at the same time may take advanced degrees in the department. This last is the best work offered by the department, and in these days of growing demand for social workers is too little known.

The Indianapolis City Hospital

The Indianapolis City Hospital has too few visitors—visitors who are concerned in the hospital for its sake and welfare. There are few hospitals in the Middle West that are as interesting, or have as much history connected with them.

It has a normal capacity of 500 beds. The wards are large, well ventilated, and lighted with a sun parlor in connection with each one. The equipment is very complete and modern, and is kept so by constant repair and additions. The walls of the wards contain beautiful paintings by famous Indiana artists. The entire hospital has just been refinished and redecorated.

A new and modern contagious ward has recently been put into commission, and cares for all contagions except small-pox. Two venerial wards have also been recently opened; they are under the supervision of the U. S. Public Health Service. All groups of contagious and infectious cases are cared for in the most approved manner for the protection of all concerned.

All food in the hospital is purchased, prepared and served under the direction of a trained dietitian. Courses in dietetics for the nurses are given here, and special diets are prepared by them, under proper supervision.

The interne staff consists of sixteen young men who obtain their positions through competitive examinations. They are here to learn and are surely working hard. Every case possible is studied carefully; a complete history is taken and all necessary laboratory and X-ray work is done. The interne staff is assisted and counseled by a visiting staff of the most able physicians and surgeons in the city. The clinical material is unlimited, both in variety and number of cases. A house physician and surgeon are always in the hospital whose duty it is to supervise the care of all patients and to aid the internes.

An interneship here is one of the most desirable in the State or Middle West.

The Nurses Home in connection with the Training School for Nurses is located in very attractive quarters. They have a spacious assembly and class room. This school is recognized by all State boards of registration, and was established in 1883. It is the oldest and one of the most efficient schools of the State, and one of the oldest in the United States.

Any young woman contemplating taking up the ennobling profession of nursing would find it well worth her while to visit the institution and learn the advantages of training in a general hospital and one which gives the broadest education.

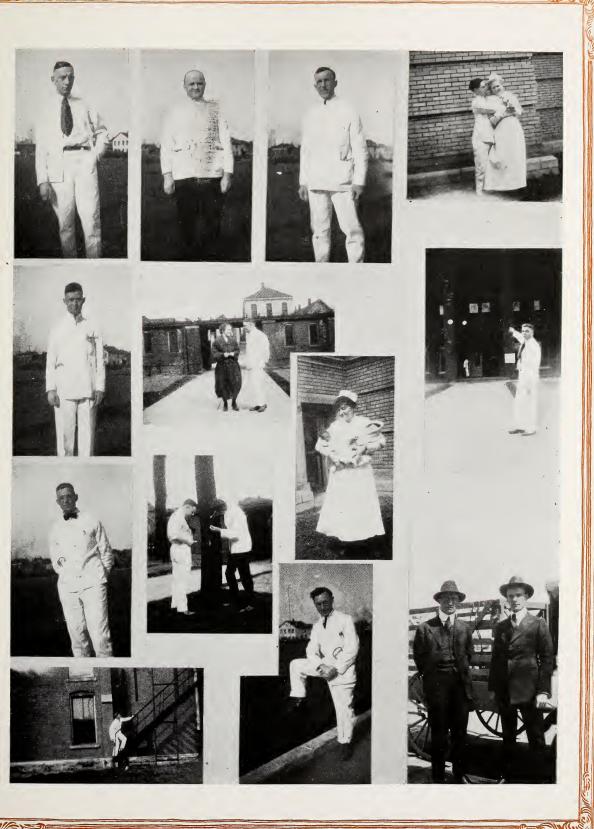

"We," who happen to know, have no hesitancy in saying that the remarkable results obtained by the work of the hospital is largely due to the thorough and conscientious efforts on the part of its new Superintendent. "We" would also like to wager that he will be prominent in its further development and growth.

MRS. RUTH H. MILLER

The Social Service Department is new in this hospital, but its influence and activities are being widely felt. It is doing excellent work both for the hospital and for the community at large. It keeps in intimate touch with all cases while in the hospital and follows the cases after leaving the hospital.

The work is in charge of Mrs. Ruth H. Miller, a graduate of Indiana University '15, and of social service in Yale University Hospital at New Haven, Conn. She has already demonstrated her ability for and adaption to doing good social work.

HORACE MANN PICKERILL

H. M. Pickerill died in the Robert W. Long Hospital at Indianapolis Dec. 17, 1918, the cause of death being pneumonia. "Pick" received his early education at Georgetown, Ohio. He attended Cornell University, from which school he received the A. B. degree. He served as assistant in the Bacteriology Department of the Agricultural College at Cornell and was assistant in Bacteriology at Indiana University School of Medicine at Indianapolis.

From the time he entered the University in 1916 he established a record for scholarship that few could hope to equal. Not only was he a scholar but a man who was held in the highest respect by his instructors and class-mates in the Medical School.

He was the originator of the Masonic fraternity at Bloomington and a member of Nu Sigma Nu.

PROF. CHARLES DIVEN CAMPBELL

Prof. Charles Diven Campbell, head of the Department of Music of Indiana University, Prof. Charles Diven Campbell, head of the Department of Music of Indiana University, died Saturday morning, March 29, 1919, following a week's illness of double pneumonia. Prof. Campbell had been in charge of the Department of Music since 1910. Mr. Campbell was born at Anderson, Indiana, August 3, 1877. From 1894 to 1896 he attended Heidelberg College, Germany, and from 1896 to 1897, the University of Heidelberg. He then returned to this country and in 1898 he received his A.B. from Indiana University. In 1900 he again went abroad and attended the University of Strassburg, at the same time acting as an instructor in a private German school. He received his degree of Ph.D. from the University of Strassburg in 1905. The following year he spent at Harvard University.

He became a member of the faculty of Indiana University soon after leaving Harvard, coming here as an assistant in the German department.

coming here as an assistant in the German department.

Dr. Campbell married Miss Elizabeth Grimes at Brazil, Indiana, August 15, 1917, who with an infant child survives him.

Professor Campbell was a member of Beta Theta Pi, Phi Beta Kappa, and of the Columbia Club at Indianapolis.

The Indiana Daily Student

The "Student" was originally published under the auspices of the Athenian and Philomathean literary societies as a semi-monthly publication. Unson Carter, of the class of 1867, was one of the founders. During the period of the Civil War the publication was suspended. W. L. Bryan revived the paper in 1882. In 1893 the publication was changed to a weekly, and in 1898 it became a daily with all the earmarks of a real newspaper.

"Chic" Jackson and Don Herold, both of whom attained National fame as cartoonists and editorial writers, were associated with the paper in later years.

During the Great War, the "Student," unlike a great number of college papers, did not suspend publication, but kept up almost to its pre-war standards. This was done to a large extent through the cooperation of the girls, and for the first time, during the Winter Term of 1919, the "Student" had a woman for its editor-in-chief. During the year, women held the offices of editor-in-chief, associate editor, managing editor, city editor, feature editor, co-ed editor and copy editor.

Those in charge of the paper during 1919 were: Editor-in-Chief—Herbert Hope, Ethel Larm, Dwight Peterson. Managing Editor—Ethel Larm, Helen Trent, Dallas Newton. City Editor—Dallas Newton, Helen Trent.

The Indiana Daily Student Staff

Work on the "Student" serves as a laboratory course in practical journalism for the staff. The staff is composed of about thirty members and is organized on the same basis as that of a metropolitan daily.

During the Summer Session, the paper is published semi-weekly. The "Student" has built up a reputation second to none in the Middle West and is now one of the best among college newspapers.

Men's Glee Club

The Men's Glee Club is composed of about thirty of the best singers in the University. It has been managed the last two years by J. Dwight Peterson. The club this year is also the male part of the University Chorus. It is usually heard several times during the year at Bloomington and in the spring there is one and sometimes two trips through the State.

The Indiana Union

The Indiana Union is an organization of, by, and for Indiana University men, created for the purpose of fostering fellowship, furnishing adequate club quarters for its members, for supplementing all organizations and factors which create a high type of University life.

Among the good things that the Union does is the maintenance of lounging and reading rooms in the east end of the Student Building. A barber shop and billiard parlor are parts of the Union's activities. This year, the Union has directed much of its time and efforts in advocating student government for Indiana University. Plans for the completion of this project are now being formulated by the Board.

The Union is governed by officers and directors elected by the entire membership each spring.

The Boosters! Club

The purpose of this organization is the promotion of interest in all matters tending to strengthen I. U. spirit and the unity of the student body. Organized originally with the aim of conducting the State Basketball Tournament, the Club has broadened its functions and has been perpetuated. This year, after the breaking up the S. A. T. C., the club has financed the Christmas training of the basketball team, supported the Baseball Benefit Dance, promoted Pep Sessions, and advocated student government.

The membership comprises one representative from each fraternity and local organization and ten men chosen from the Association of the Unorganized.

The Sphinx Club

The Sphinx Club is an organization composed of about thirty men selected from the Greek letter fraternities. The persons chosen to be members of this organization are usually selected at some baseball game in the spring and the spiking committee makes its way through the crowd to tie on the black and white ribbons. The organization is purely social and was organized about seven years ago.

The members, as they appear in the picture, are:

Fourth Row—Kacy, Conter, Asby, Harkins, Comstock, Driscoll.

Fifth Row— Weber, Mendenhall, Pierce, Sutheimer, Shan, Scott.

Young Men's Christian Association

This year the Young Men's Christian Association has sought to adjust itself to conditions in many ways similar to those in a cantonment. Besides the cabinet and general secretary, the Association has had a building secretary furnished by the War Work Council, who has supervised all the activities of a service counter such as is maintained in a regular "Y" hut.

In November the Y. M. and Y. W. raised $7,400 for the United War Work Fund. In May the men on the campus pledged one-half of a $4,000 budget for an enlarged program in 1919-20.

Recognizing that the ideals defended in the World War are still in a large measure to be conserved, the Association has, through its World Problems Forum, enlisted the interest of many students in Christian world reconstruction. This Forum secured men to speak who have been in intimate touch with the social, educational and religious needs of the various parts of the world, and who could describe great fields of opportunity for American Christian students in foreign lands. One significant tangible expression of the "Y" interest in a world fraternity for Christian liberty was a gift of $1,500 to Mr. A. L. Miller at Lahore, India, for the men and boys there.

Two traditioal social events of the year, the Freshman Stag Social and the Every Man Banquet, were a decided success. Eighteen free motion pictures were shown with a total attendance of 7,000. One hundred sixty-five Bible discussion groups were held with a total attendance exceeding 2,000.

The Y. W. C. A.

The Y. W. C. A. activities, although handicapped during the past year by existing circumstances in the University, have been many and varied. In the civilian relief work the "Big Sister" movement has attracted more attention than any other work. Night schools for working girls have also been maintained. The Association has also been active in its usual devotional, Bible and Mission work.

The University Band

Although organized under difficulties due to the S. A. T. C., the Indiana University Band has developed into a large, efficient organization. The band is a potential factor in lending pep to all athletic contests and in carrying out other University affairs and events. It played a prominent part in greeting the 150th Field Artillery at Indianapolis on Welcome Home Day.

No small amount of credit for the success of the band is due to the directors. Dwight Van Osdol assumed the responsibility of organizing and leading it during the regime of the S. A. T. C., and the winter term. Arch Warner took over the directorship for the spring term.

Mu Beta Fraternity

The Mu Beta Inter-Fraternity was founded among college and university men at the Great Lakes Naval Training Station last summer. When the men in the undergraduate companies were sent back to their several institutions, chapters were founded in fourteen schools throughout the middle-west, of which number the Theta chapter of Indiana University is considered one of the most active in the fraternity.

By a special ruling passed in a meeting of the National Council, January 10th, 1919, it was decided to enlarge the scope of the fraternity so as to make any man who had been in the service of his country in the Great War eligible for membership, although not necessarily naval service. The I. U. men who were initiated at Great Lakes were: Ralph Winslow, Virlyn Broadstreet, Richard Page, and Herbert M. Spencer. The other men were initiated here.

The pin is a skull with a red and a green eye, bearing the letters Mu and Beta, the colors are emerald green and black, and the flower is the red carnation.

Advisory Board—Association of the Unorganized

Another pre-war tradition of the University was revived this winter when the old Association of the Unorganized met for the first time since 1916. The association has for its purpose the promotion of good fellowship among the unorganized men, and the support of the University interests in general. Every unorganized man in the student body is a member of the association.

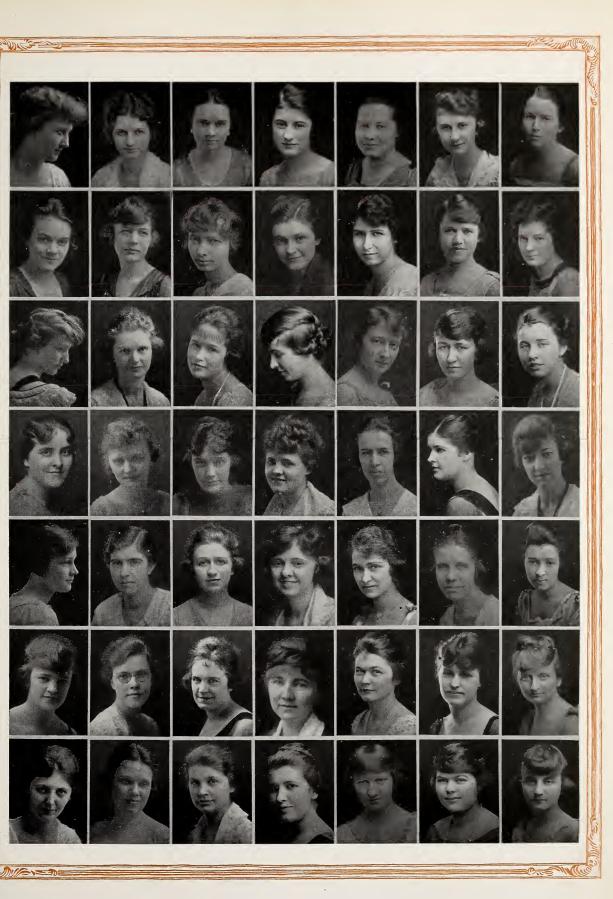

The Advisory Board is the executive body of the association.

THE PROLOGUE—HOOSIER AMERICAN

The "Hoosier American," a musical comedy depicting local college life in war times, was presented April 30, 1918. It was the first play of its kind ever attempted at Indiana University and proved a success both dramatically and financially. The proceeds were given to the Bryan War Fund.

"SAME OLD MOON"

One of the most popular numbers in the production of the "Hoosier American" was the singing of the song, "Same Old Moon," by Miss Mary Jane Carr.

HIS MOTHER'S ARRIVAL

THE DRAWING OF THE SWORD

"The Drawing of the Sword," a well-known patriotic pageant, was presented by Professor Frazier's dramatic classes for two performances, May 30 and June 12, 1918. The original pageant was given as a second part of the Red Cross Pageant at the Rosemary Theatre, L. I., on October 5, 1917. It was later repeated at the Metropolitan Theatre in New York. The presentation by University talent was beautiful and forceful, and attained a degree of success which has been favorably compared with that of the original presentation and cast.

In the Form Of before-the-War Dances, Those Dollar-a-Couple Affairs, And we Admired The Financiers Who put them Across; Surely, Careers await them Out in the Wide, Wide World. Then. There was Some Talk Of a Union Revue. But Dad Elliot Must have Put The Idea Of the Aspiring Ann Penningtons To Flight, And so We didn't Do It. Then Came A Great Social Upheaval And Reign of Near-Bolshevism On the Questions Of Smoke with your Coke, Chummy Dancing, Whether a House Party Is a Party at the House, And when a Sleeve Is not a Sleeve. #### Every Indiana University Man is a Member of the

Indiana Union

Democracy is emphasized by this organization, which is the only one on the campus open to every wide-awake and red-blooded student.

The Union stands for a bigger and better Indiana. The only united action on any question of vital importance is obtained by this organization, representative of the student body.

The Indiana Union supports a barber shop and billiard room in the Student Building.

Seniors and Undergraduates

If you are graduating in the class of 1919 and are interested in Indiana University, why not keep in touch with the University by subscribing for the Indiana Daily Student?

For the under-graduate a bound file of this paper can not be equalled by the best memory book or diary. It is a day by day history of the affairs of the University, a perpetual source of interest and enjoyment.

No matter where you are located, have the Indiana Daily Student delivered by mail or carrier.
